Uncertainty surrounding inflation persists, and the potential effects of inflation and other rising living costs on consumer behavior in both the business and retail sectors continue to be a matter of consideration. Reassuringly, approximately 36% of Stealth’s revenue is generated by the end markets of mining, resources, and infrastructure. These end markets remain strong with ongoing high demand for Stealth’s products and services.

With >95% of its products categorised as non-discretionary, Stealth enjoys a robust position, poised to weather any economic downturn, and sustain consistent demand for its offerings. The Company also anticipates the ongoing recovery of cost inflation through pricing adjustments in 2023 Calendar Year (CY23), which is predicted to contribute to an improvement in profit.

The effectiveness of our investments across all banners is fueled by unification, providing a wider product selection, cross-promotion, and enhanced value for customers, ultimately propelling substantial growth.

In March 2023, a newly-formed Central Procurement Office (CPO) was established with the primary objective of consolidating, streamlining, and overseeing strategic supplier contracts, resulting in enhanced margins, profits, and sales by leveraging economies of scale, improved purchasing power, and increased efficiency throughout the supply chain.

The acquisitions of Skipper Transport Parts (August 2021) and United Tools (March 2022) present significant potential for synergies that are yet to be realised. The consolidation of operating banners in CY2023 is one of the expected advantages of these acquisitions.

Capital allocation will remain meticulously controlled, with a focus on directing internal investments towards inventory, digital channels that include Artificial Intelligence (AI), as well as store and distribution centre enhancements.
